Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-29 and 57, drawn to a semiconductor device and a driving method in which an identical data signal is successively provided over a plurality of times from an identical address in a memory unit, classified in class 365, subclass 189.01.
- II. Claims 30-56, drawn to an image output device provided with an injector for firing a droplet for printing, classified in class 347, subclass 5.
- III. Claims 58-61, drawn to a manufacturing method, of a semiconductor device or image output device in which the elements of the device are formed in a one and the same process classified in class 438, subclass 21.

Inventions I and II are related as subcombination and combination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the identical control signal of Invention II need not be provided from an identical address as required from Invention I. The subcombination has separate utility such as in driving functional elements other than those used in firing droplets for printing such as driving LEDs of a display or elements involved in memory storage.

Inventions I and III are related as product made and process of making. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make other and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case the product as claimed may be made by a combination of different semiconductor manufacturing processes (PVD, CVD, wet etching, dry etching, etc.).

Inventions II and III are related as product made and process of making. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make other and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case the product as claimed may be made by a combination of different semiconductor manufacturing processes (PVD, CVD, wet etching, dry etching, etc.).

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

A telephone call was made to applicant's representative on February 11, 2005 to request an oral election to the above restriction requirement, but did not result in an election being made.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
